Oxford Online Practice 1.0 Accessibility Statement

Created 8 April 2025

Oxford University Press continuously strives to make its products accessible to as many people as possible.

To work toward that goal, we design our websites to meet the needs of all users. We try to make the Oxford Online Practice website accessible to everyone, regardless of their accessibility needs.

We also aim to meet level AA of the World Wide Web Consortium (W3C) Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 2.1 (WCAG 2.1). By doing this, we want to make sure that our users can take full advantage of the accessibility features of their device, web browser, operating system or assistive technology.

Conformance Status

We strive to adhere to the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.1, but we acknowledge that some parts of our platform may not be fully accessible at this time. We are aware of certain accessibility issues and are working towards resolving them.

Compatibility with Browsers and Assistive Technology

Our platform is designed to be compatible with the latest versions of major browsers and assistive technologies. However, we recognize that there may be some compatibility issues, and we are working to address these.

How we test this website

Our websites are regularly tested by independent accessibility specialists. First, they use automated tools to test the webpages. Then, they assess the pages using screen-readers. They test websites on various operating systems and mobile devices. If they find any issues, we create a plan to fix those issues.
